Charl. pap.

There is a Jacobin paper lately established at Baltimore, which speaks the sentiments of the party with less reserve than any other which we have seen. In a late number, speaking of the candidate for the next presidency, that print makes the following candid confession:

"Let the WORST MAN in the community be regularly nominated by the 'free, unbiased, and disinterested choice of the majority and we would CHEERFULLY ADVOCATE his election.'"

Phil. paper.

On Tuesday night last, a laboring man at the lower end of the town, introduced a pot of coals, put therein some sulphur with an intention to destroy or drive away the rats which infested his dwelling and then went to bed. On Wednesday morning his fellow laborer missing the above from his work, called at the house as he went to breakfast, but finding all fast, broke open the door, where he found the man, his wife and four children, in a state of insensibility; but on proper application, we hear most of them if not all, are likely to recover.

The New York Gazette of Tuesday 2d inst.

Yesterday (quarter-day) was a busy day among the LANDLORDS—Many houses were given up, because the tenants insisted on a reduction on account of the total stagnation of business by the embargo. In some instances Landlords have reduced the rents; but generally houses have been let as high as usual. Some, who have rented their property at the last years rate, have promised a handsome reduction if the Embargo continue six months.

From a Charleston Paper.

COMMUNICATION.

EMBARGO.

What the effects of this act will be abroad we are to learn hereafter, but those which it is producing at home we begin to feel, and feel pretty sharply. Rice, which some weeks since sold briskly at 5 dollars 50 cents, is now nominally worth but 1 dollar 75 cents; black seed cotton has fallen from 34 cents to 22 a 25 cents, and no sale, and corn is down to fifty six cents!

The North Carolina price current, says, flour is down to 2 dollars 25 cents the barrel, and tobacco to 2 dollars 50 cents the cwt. In Maryland it has occasioned a resolution being offered for closing the courts of that state. Such is the beginning of the embargo measure, but what will be the end?

Legislative Eloquence.

As we have published the eloquent speeches of Messrs. Gaston and Henderson in the legislature of North Carolina, we give an extract from the speech of col. Hamilton, the mover of the resolution, to whom these gentlemen replied. It is a close imitation of the Aurora eloquence, and equally as remarkable for the truth of its sentiments as for the delicacy of its language.

"Shall we not asked colonel Hamilton, solicit Mr. Jefferson again to become president? It is known that he declines from principle. Should we not then remove his scruples of delicacy; for if we loose him who shall we find equal to the task? Let us look round the United States and take a view of the most prominent characters. What is Rufus King? He is a man of some abilities, but he is known to be the child of faction, the disciple of Alexander Hamilton, to have imbibed his Tory his royal principles. What is George Clinton? He was once a great man, but he is anti-guested, and has resigned himself to the government of factious favorites. Monroe would be the tool, the puppet of John Randolph. Mr. Madison wants nerves, wants energy; he would be blown about by every breeze; and if we look to South Carolina, we shall see Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, another disciple of Hamilton and a creature of faction. On whom can we repose with entire confidence besides Mr. Jefferson? He would be the safe depository of our rights and liberties; and we ought for him, in a time of peril and danger to solidify him to lay aside his scruples and become the saviour of his country."

From the FEDERAL GAZETTE.

Of the Government Paper.

The National Intelligencer, in remarking on the late news from Europe appears to believe that the present state of things there will prove a benefit to us. Speaking of England the Editor asks,

"Is not this the precise moment for her to relax in her pretensions towards this country? We demand nothing but what is just—the same freedom of trade which she has always insisted upon—and that very freedom, which, in the present crisis, may be essential to her existence? Independently of the confederated hostility of all Europe against her, she is menaced with a severer scourge than war! At the very moment when she had flattered herself with a plentiful harvest, the assurance of which perhaps had a great influence on the principles she had set up, as well in point of time, as in regard to their extent; at the very time she calculated upon the abundance of her crops to supply the means of carrying these measures into effect she is visited, in her most vulnerable point, with the most awful calamity which can threaten or befall a nation. Famine already stares her in the face, (alluding to the letter from Cork.)

"If such apprehension existed at the end of November, to what degree may it not be expected to rise about the beginning of February, when the information of our embargo shall reach her; when she shall find her stock of provisions greatly diminished; when she shall have suffered severely from the prohibitory orders of her own government; when the stock of raw materials for her manufactures is gradually declining; when the want of the all-important article of flax seed, (no where else to be got) shall have paralyzed the labors of the farmer, and presented a more dreary prospect to the manufacturer; and when the prospect of a supply from this country hitherto her constant reliance in time of distress—shall have vanished? Will not Britain, at such a period, yield to that principle which she has made the pretext for all her invasions of neutral rights, to the principle of necessity, whose existence, however incorrectly urged on other occasions, can admit of no question under such circumstances? We do hope that she will, and that her own decided interest will induce her to act a wise, honorable and just part towards us."

He then concludes with the following "Frenchified" paragraph. It is truly Frenchified; for it conveys the opinion that France need not be expected nor ought she to be compelled to repeal her ridiculous blockading decrees, until Britain shall have abandoned the ground which the government writer knows she assumed, in consequence of our not resisting the oppressive measure of her enemy. We attempt not to apologise for the misconduct of any foreign power. But why does the official journal evince such an uniform partiality to France?

"France, too, and all her allies, will most sensibly feel the effects of the embargo; so sensibly, we should hope, as to be herself willing, in case England relaxes her conduct to neutrals, likewise to annul her restrictions. We are assured from a correct commercial source that flour was in that country, at the latest accounts, at ten dollars a barrel, which is four dollars above its average price since the accession of Napoleon."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Philadelphia to his friend in Georgetown.

"Yesterday between 12 and 1 o'clock doctor Physick took away a very large POLYPUS from the nose and throat of John Reeder. The size is almost incredible. The part that lay nearest the throat looks like a heart, rather larger than that of the largest Turkey Cock, perhaps as large as that of a young lamb. The remaining part was the thickness of the nostril in which it lay. It was taken away root and branch, without the loss of much blood, and John, can now breathe through his nose."

Doctor Physick has gained much applause by his operation. He means to preserve the polypus in spirits. He attempted to take it out on Saturday; I was then present, but the silver wire broke. Yesterday I was not present, but I am informed he broke another wire. He then waxed a piece of tape and wrapped another wire with it; and succeeded. The operation was somewhat similar to the manner of taking a cork out of a bottle with a string. He first got his wire over it so as to tear it loose, and then took it out at his mouth."

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Begun and held at the Capitol in the city of Richmond, on Monday the 7th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seven, and of the commonwealth the thirty-second.

An Act, concerning the Sale of Property, under Executions, and Incumbrances.

[Passed Feb. 1st, 1808.]

BE it enacted by the general assembly, That so much of the act, passed on the tenth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three, intituled, "An act, for further continuing and amending the act, entitled, an act, for reducing into one, the several acts, concerning executions, and for the relief of insolvent debtors," as directs, that when goods or other estate, taken in execution, cannot be sold for three-fourths of their value, the debtor or debtors, may give bond and security to pay the debt within twelve months, or that the said goods, or other estate, may be sold on twelve months credit, and every part of the said recited act, as concerns such executions, either in the appointment of commissioners to carry the same into effect, or for the direction of the sheriff or other officer, or the clerk of any court in suing out execution on any such bond, or of any other person whomsoever, and of every matter or thing thereto appertaining, shall be, and the same is hereby declared to be in full force: And all courts, sheriffs and other officers, as well as the parties concerned, are to govern themselves accordingly, any thing in the law to the contrary notwithstanding.

Be it further enacted, That before any commissioners appointed by the decree of any court of chancery, to sell any real or personal estate, or any trustee under any deed of trust, hereafter executed, shall proceed to sell the estate decreed to be sold or conveyed in trust, the commissioners directed to be appointed by this act, or any three of them, shall value the estate intended to be sold, on the request of the creditor, and if three-fourths at least of the estimated value, shall not be offered by the highest bidder, the estate shall not be then sold, nor shall it be at any time thereafter sold during the continuance of this act, for less than three-fourths of such estimated value: The valuation shall be made and entered in writing, signed by the commissioners or any three of them, and delivered to the commissioners appointed by the courts of chancery, and to the trustees respectively.

The commissioners who may act by virtue of this section, shall be entitled to the sum of one dollar for each day they shall be employed, to be paid by the creditor, to be taxed, in the bill of costs.

The provisions of this act shall not extend to executions, which may issue against any sheriff or other public officer, for delinquencies, or failing to pay money received on executions, nor to executions which may issue against an attorney at law, for money received in behalf of his client or clients. All valuations of property made or to be made by commissioners, shall be according to the ordinary value of property, before the first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and seven.

The provisions of this act shall not be construed to extend to any execution issued upon any judgment obtained by any bank established by law. The provisions of this act shall extend to executions issued by any justice of the peace, mayor or alderman, for all sums exceeding ten dollars, exclusive of costs; and the constable or other officer, taking any bond, by virtue of this act, shall return the same within thirty days, to the clerk's office of the county, in which such execution shall have issued, to be proceeded on as other replevy bonds. And all executions which shall be awarded on forthcoming bonds executed before the commencement of this act, shall be proceeded in as other executions: but the proceedings on all forthcoming bonds executed thereafter, shall be as heretofore.

So much of this act as authorises the appointment of commissioners shall be in force from and after the passing thereof: And the several county and corporation courts shall appoint such commissioners at their next February terms, or as soon thereafter as practicable; and the residue of this act shall commence and be in force from and after the first day of March next, and continue in force until the expiration of thirty days after the discontinuance of the embargo, laid by the congress of the United States during the present session. But so much of this and the above recited act as authorises and directs the manner of proceeding on replevy bonds, taken by virtue of this act, shall be, and the same is hereby made perpetual.

This tract descended to me from my uncle George D. Alexander, being one moiety of the land he was entitled to for his military services during the revolutionary war. All the title papers with the wills under which I am entitled to the above property, are in the hands of Baldwin Dade, Esq. to whom application will please to be made for terms &c.

dispose of all the above valuable property, for which good and satisfactory titles will be gi-
